Are there any costs for Orientation?
- There is no fee to attend Orientation for students and families. All costs associated with student meals and rooming on campus for students during Orientation are paid by the College. Parents/families are required to pay for their own hotel if they choose to spend the night.

I heard I have to take a test during Orientation, please say no?
- Yes, all students will take a short (30 minute) math placement test during Orientation. This test is used to insure that you are placed in the appropriate math class during registration.

Where will students stay during Orientation?
- Students will stay in one of the apartment-style residence halls on campus. Although students will share the apartment, each student will have a private bedroom. Assignments are made upon registration and a member of the O-Team will escort you to your room. All students are required to stay in the campus residence hall during Orientation – even if your parents are staying at a nearby hotel.

Where will parent(s) or family members stay during Orientation?
- LaGrange College does not provide housing to parents, guardians, or family members during Orientation. A list of accommodations in the LaGrange area can be found here.

When will I be able to register for fall classes?
Students will receive advisement and register for classes during the actual Orientation session.

When/How do I get my roommate?
- Roommate pairing occurs in one of two ways: (a) two students wishing to live together both inform the housing office that they want to room with each other, or (b) housing staff make roommate matches based on responses listed on the roommate selection questionnaire. Several students find their roommates at Orientation sessions, so keep this in mind. Those students that are paired by housing typically find out their rooming assignments in late July.

Checking in for Orientation
- Check in for Orientation occurs in the lobby of Turner Hall (campus map). Signs will placed around campus to assist you in finding parking. Likewise, student members of the Orientation Team will be near parking lots to assist you find Turner Hall.
- At check in, students will be issued the key to their residence hall room. Students are encouraged to bring their belongings (bedding, clothes, etc.) with them to check in as student members of the Orientation Team will be available to assist them in finding their room.

Will I be able to see my parent(s)/guardian(s) or leave campus during Orientation?
- The Student and Parent/Family Orientation programs begin together and then split to run separately until the event closes. The program is designed to give students and parents/families separate, but complementary, experiences. Students may not leave campus during Orientation.
