Welcome!

Your student begins a new journey at Orientation 2015. The College faculty, staff, and the student-led “O-Team” are well prepared to make this event a success, but as supportive Panther parents, you can help in three big ways:

1. Don’t be afraid to admit that this may be a time of excitement and stress for everyone involved – maybe even your entire family.

2. Get to know the city of LaGrange. LaGrange, Georgia, is brimming with Southern Charm as well as historic architecture, boutique shopping, and first-class restaurants. Take time during evening hours to allow yourself to discover why LaGrange is called “One of America’s Great Little Cities.”

3. Encourage your student to get involved. These two days are programmed to help students prepare for First Week (August 22-25) and the first day of classes (August 26), but a second objective is to familiarize them with the multitude of campus opportunities they’ll have to meet people, express themselves and grow as a servant and a leader. Encourage them to immerse themselves in the active, caring atmosphere that exists here at LaGrange College.

We trust that your experience at Orientation 2014 will be a rewarding one as we partner together in support of your student. This is going to be an exciting journey.

Pouncer