Pre-Law - Pre-Law

Type:Major

Pre-Law is a program of study which incorporates courses from several studies of discipline that would help a student in a career in law, including from English, History, Political Science, Psychology, Religion and Sociology.

Pre-Law is designed to prepare you for law school, and possibly a career as an attorney, prosecutor, judge, or a position in a government agency dealing with the law. In the Pre-Law Program you will

- Learn about the law.
- Get ready for the LSAT, the Law School Admission Test.
- Take courses which emphasize the speaking and writing skills that are useful in law school.

It is important to note that a student does not need to major in Political Science or Pre-Law to apply for law school. This program is designed to help students prepare for law school and a law career, but students have the freedom to major in whatever they choose at LaGrange College.

The Pre-Law Advisor is Professor Jeff Lukken, from the Political Science Program. He can be reached at jlukken@lagrange.edu. He and adjunct professors in the program have law degrees.
